

INTRODUCTION

Issue 51 of Revista Última Década contains works that showcase the realities of youths from four countries in our Americas.

In the first section, we present works related to youths in Mexico. Patricia Westendarp Palacios and Luis Iglesias Sahagún open this section with their article "Young university students and sociability," based on a study of university students from the Autonomous University of Querétaro. Ángela Rivera Martínez analyzes "Youth technologies for the juvenilization of the body: a reflection from body practices in models from Mexico City." The section concludes with Alicia Tinoco García, Abraham Osorio Ballesteros, and Felipe González Ortiz presenting the article "Young people, structural violence contexts and citizenship"

The second section addresses youths in Argentina. Joaquín Linne and Paula Fernández Lopes start with the article "Looking for the perfect match. Profiles, experiences and socio-affective expectations of young individuals on tinder." Sebastián Fuentes explores "Positivized youth in Buenos Aires: class, moral and esthetics in the production of contemporary youths." Alicia B. Gutiérrez and Gonzalo Assusa conclude this section with the text "Social capital and labor insertion strategies. A study on young individuals from working classes in Cordoba, Argentina."

The third section contains two works on youths in Brazil and youths in Chile. Sabrina Dal Ongaro Savegnago presents the article "Discursive and social practices related to youth and young individuals." The section closes with Juan Sandoval Moya and Valeria Carvallo Gallardo's text "A 'fearless' generation: discourse analysis on the young chilean student movement protagonists."
